2                   (In open court.)

3                   THE COURT: Please be seated. Sorry I'm running late.
4 I also have some new arrests for 2:30, if we can finish by then,
5 and if we can't we'll just push those back, but just so you 6 know.

7                   And it's my understanding that we have Mr. Hailong on 8 the phone, and so he's listening; is that right?

9                   DEFENDANT MO HAILONG: Yes.

10                  THE COURT: Okay. And, again, we don't have an 11 interpreter, and I know in the past we've used an interpreter, 12 but we were told that for purposes of today's hearing that's 13 fine to proceed without an interpreter.

14                  MR. WEINHARDT: Robert, this is Mark Weinhardt.
15 You're okay to proceed without an interpreter today; is that 16 correct?

17                  DEFENDANT MO HAILONG: Yes, it's okay.

18                  MR. WEINHARDT: Okay. Thank you.

19                  And, Your Honor, if I can state for the Court that 20 early in the case we did use an interpreter a couple of times, 21 but our client's English has not presented any barriers or 22 problems. He's lived in the United States since 1998, and so we 23 don't think that's an issue.

24                  THE COURT: All right. And, again, this is just a 25 discovery motion, which is why I set it up without requiring

1 defendants to be personally present. They're certainly welcome 2 to, and it's open court.

3 We're here on the defendants' motion to compel. It 4 was Mr. Hailong's motion and then it was joined by the 5 co-defendant, although the co-defendant hasn't filed any 6 separate papers other than joining in the motion.

7 So I've read your briefs. And I don't think you've 8 filed anything like in the last 24 hours, have you? No?

9 MR. WEINHARDT: No.

10 MR. GRIESS: No, Your Honor.

11 THE COURT: Okay. That's good. All right. So who 12 wants to argue for Defendant?

13 MR. WEINHARDT: Your Honor, I will argue this.

14 And, actually, what we anticipated was we would do two 15 things today; one is to argue that part of the motion to compel
16 that has been fully briefed, and the other is to tell the Court 17 where we are by way of status on the rest of the motion to 18 compel that was filed on December 15th. And we're prepared to 19 have that conversation after we argue this part of the motion.

20 THE COURT: Either way is fine because that was on my 21 list of things to talk to you about, so --

22 MR. WEINHARDT: I think we would like to argue the 23 part that is fully briefed now and then talk about status after 24 that.

25 THE COURT: All right. That's fine. Go ahead.

1 MR. WEINHARDT: Your Honor, I wanted to illustrate by 2 a quick analogy where we believe we are with this motion.
3 Imagine a garden variety drug case in which the prosecutor tells 4 the defense, "I have a glassine packet, a plastic bag, 5 containing crack cocaine, and your client's thumbprint is 6 unmistakably on that bag. This is really good evidence that 7 we're going to use to convict your client at trial."

8 And so the defense lawyer says, "Okay. Where did you
9 get it? Did my client allegedly sell it to an informant? Did 10 you get it through a consent search? Did you do a search
11 warrant on my client's apartment? Did you do a search 12 warrantlessly on my client's car? Where did you get it?"

13 And the Government says, "I'm not going to tell you 14 where I got it, but it's really, really good evidence. And, oh, 15 if you don't like the evidence, you can move to suppress it.

16 "Well, I'll move to suppress it when you tell me where 17 you got it.

18 "No. Can't tell you where I got it. National 19 security. You just can't know."

20 That's where we feel we are right now is that there 21 are a number of items of evidence that are potentially extremely 22 important to the Government's case, and we don't know where they 23 got them, and they won't tell us.

24 To give the Court some flavor of what I'm talking 25 about, there are intercepts, recorded conversations, that appear

1 to be wiretaps or electronic intercepts of both our client's 2 cell telephone and the cell telephone of another figure in the 3 investigation, not our client's sister but somebody else.

4 In our client's case, over a period of a year and a 5 half, there are 296 intercepted conversations. Now, I can tell 6 you Mr. Mo used his cell phone more than 296 times in 18 months, 7 and so we know that there had to have been lots of other 8 recorded conversations. Those haven't been produced to us. We 9 don't know where they are. We don't know who selected what was 10 to be disclosed and what was not to be disclosed, but we've got 11 these 296 conversations.

12 But there is no Title III application or order or 13 anything like that that would authorize a wire intercept. I 14 think early in the case we were told that there was never any 15 Title III surveillance, nor is there any other sort of warrant 16 or application or anything that would tell us how they got the 17 recorded telephone conversations for either of these two 18 individuals.

19 There are three different intercepts, bugs, if you
20 will, that were placed in automobiles that recorded individuals 21 speaking in automobiles. So important are some of these 22 conversations that they were actually quoted in the indictment 23 and in the superseding indictment in this case, and yet we've 24 been given no actual notice of where or under what authority 25 these conversations came.

1           There are 3,000 records in an e-mail extract for our 2 client's Gmail account. We have no clear understanding of how 3 it was that the Government got those, whether that is some sort
4 of wire intercept, whether that was a warrant under the Foreign 5 Intelligence Surveillance Act or what it was. We know it's 6 there; it's been disclosed to us. We suspect that some of it is 7 sought to be used in the Government's case in chief, but we have 8 no idea where it came from.

9           We simply want, through this motion, to have the 10 Government be required to tell us two things: One, what were 11 the collection mechanisms or the bases of legal authority that 12 they used in order to try to collect evidence of this sort; and, 13 two, connect the individual items of evidence to those 14 mechanisms.

15           Now, in most of the cases that's something that we're 16 able to do on our own. In a conventional case, you can always 17 do that. You have the search warrant, you have the search 18 warrant return, you have subpoenas, and so forth, and so you 19 have the paper trail to be able to connect the evidence that is 20 produced to you to the collection mechanism. But in this case, 21 we are in the dark for the things that I have described as well 22 as some other evidence.

23           And in part that's also because the production of the 24 search warrants themselves in this case have been piecemeal, 25 it's been scattered. In some cases we have an application but

1 we don't have the warrant. In some cases we have a warrant but 2 no application. In some cases we have documents that appear to 3 be prepared in draft form, but they're not signed, they're not 4 filed.

5 So even the conventional search warrant part of the 6 case has been very hard for us to track, so included in this 7 motion we'd ask them to fill out the grid for the regular search 8 warrants, but they have to also fill the grid for those 9 collection mechanisms that are not conventional search warrants.

10 There are two sources of law that require the 11 Government to do this. One is under Rule 12(b)(4)(B) of the 12 Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, and that rule says that in 13 order to enable the defense to file a motion to suppress, the 14 Government, on request, which we have requested, is required to 15 give notice of its intent to use evidence that was secured 16 through a search warrant. We have cited a number of cases that 17 stand for that proposition.

18 I'll give the Court a chance. 12(b)(4)(B).

19 THE COURT: Thank you.

20 MR. WEINHARDT: So we cite several cases on this. If 21 the Court wants to look at one case that I think is particularly 22 illustrative of the situation that we find ourselves in, it 23 would be the Anderson case from the D.C. District, where it was 24 a white collar case, they seized 100 boxes of documents from an 25 individual's home and from his office, and then just said,

1 "Well, there's stuff in there, and we're going to use some of it
2 at trial," and he asked the Government to be required to say 3 what they're going to use at trial so he could properly frame a 4 motion to suppress.

5 And the District of Columbia court there required that 6 production or required that identification and particularly 7 said, as I think every case we have cited, that an open file
8 policy, as the Government has purportedly followed here, is not 9 enough. They actually have to tell you what it is that they're 10 going to use.

11 Now, the rule doesn't explicitly say that you have to 12 connect it to the bases for collection, but that's because the 13 rule anticipates the ordinary circumstance in which you have a 14 search warrant inventory and so you can see without having to 15 inquire of the Court or the Government like this where it came 16 from.

17 In this instance, though, the rule only works if the 18 Government is required to tell us where they got it. If they 19 don't tell us where they got it, the rule is completely 20 pointless. We have no idea how to move to suppress something if 21 we don't know where it came from.

22 THE COURT: But isn't that -- ultimately doesn't the 23 rule, Rule 12(b)(4)(B), require the Government to tell you what 24 they're going to use as evidence in trial? So right now, when 25 we're still in the kind of, well, "here's the world of

1 discovery" universe, if the Government argues it's premature to 2 require them to connect that up right now until they know what 3 they're going to use at trial, are we jumping the gun here?

4 MR. WEINHARDT: I don't think that we're jumping the 5 gun because we have a pretrial schedule of events, and that 6 schedule requires us to file motions, pretrial motions,
7 including motions to suppress, by March 27th. And so there's no
8 way for us to comply with that deadline if the Government 9 doesn't tell us what the evidence that's going to be used at 10 trial is.

11 And, quite frankly, for our purposes, what's more
12 important is just, for each fund of evidence, tell us where you
13 got it. So for the 3,000 records in the Gmails, if they didn't 14 tell us which ones they're going to use at trial, that's 15 probably okay if they were all collected through the same legal 16 authority and collection mechanism. Just tell us where you got 17 those. For the 296 cell phone intercepts, you don't necessarily 18 have to tell us which ones, but just tell us where you got 19 those. That would be sufficient.

20 I would suspect that the Government could give us that 21 answer in a day in less than one page. So we're not asking for 22 the production of anything that we don't already have by way of 23 evidence, and I don't think that we're asking for anything
24 that's remotely burdensome. It's just a matter of they don't 25 want to tell us.

1           Now, the other legal basis apart from that is the FISA
2 statute itself. Now, this applies only to evidence that was 3 derived through the FISA procedure. And there are other
4 procedures. Of course, there is the conventional search warrant
5 bucket; there is the Title III bucket, although I think we're 6 told that bucket is empty; there is the subpoena bucket. But 7 there are also, as we described in our brief, there is the 8 executive order bucket, there's the FISA Amendments Act bucket.
9 So there are several different buckets that evidence could be 10 in, and they need to tell us what's in those buckets.

11           We do know that there is something in the FISA bucket 12 because in each of our cases, ours and in Mo Yun's, they have 13 filed literally a one-sentence notice to say there is something 14 in the FISA bucket. Today they take the position they don't 15 have to tell us what's in the bucket, they just have to tell us 16 that the FISA bucket is not empty. That, we would submit, Your 17 Honor, is a misreading of the FISA statute.

18           And if I may approach, Your Honor, that is maybe a 19 larger quotation of what the Court's already looking at, but 20 1806(c) is the notice provision in FISA for a non-physical 21 search. For physical searches under 1827, there's an exactly 22 parallel provision.

23           But the threshold description of what that notice 24 provision is talking about uses the word "any," but after that, 25 it uses the words "that," "the," and "such." Each of those

1 words used in context plainly require an identification; tell 2 them the evidence that you are going to use, tell them such 3 information that you are going to use, not just tell them
4 generically that information is going to be used.

5           And so completely apart from Rule 12, it seems plain
6 as day that FISA requires this. And neither in the Rule 12 case
7 nor in the FISA case does the Government cite any case that 8 comes within a country mile of saying that they're not obligated 9 to tell us what common sense dictates and what I think the 10 statutory text tells us that they have to provide.

11           They give examples from the statute where they say, 12 "Well, the statute has other times where there are specific 13 disclosure obligations," but this too would be a fourth, in 14 addition to their three examples, a fourth specific disclosure 15 obligation. And the three examples from the statute they give 16 are all examples where the evidence is not necessarily being 17 used in a proceeding.

18           This is the example where the evidence is being used 19 in a proceeding, and where it is being used in a proceeding, the 20 plain meaning of the statute that is in front of the Court right
21 now means that the evidence has to be connected to the FISA 22 procedure.

23           The Government even kind of gives it up at one point 24 in the brief where they say, "Well, golly, we realize that the 25 defense is kind of in a tough spot here and it's hard to frame

1 their motions, and so forth," which is sort of like President 2 Kennedy about saying who was going to go to Vietnam and who was 3 not, saying, "Life is unfair."

4 Life may be unfair. The Federal Government, when it 5 prosecutes a criminal defendant, is not allowed to be unfair, 6 and it is unfair to stop us from learning the information that 7 we need to know in order to get these motions properly framed.
8 So that's the part where they have to connect it to the 9 mechanism.

10 Now, the earlier part of the motion is they have to 11 identify the mechanism in the first place. They can't just say, 12 "Well, it came from a secret mechanism, not a conventional 13 mechanism." They have to tell us what the mechanism is because 14 each of the mechanisms has a different legal framework.

15 So, for example, I'm sure later on when we get to 16 litigating FISA, which we will in this case, the Government will 17 tell the Court about all of the ways in which the cards are 18 stacked against the defendant in a FISA case. But there are 19 some ways in which the defendant's got some advantages in FISA 20 that the defendant doesn't have in a normal case.

21 In a normal search warrant challenge, the defendant
22 has to have standing on his or her own. It has to be their own
23 expectation of privacy that was violated. In FISA, on the other 24 hand, if the defendant is a target or an aggrieved person, which 25 means somebody who is being attacked or prosecuted through the

1 use of FISA-derived evidence, even if it's not their own
2 expectation of privacy, they still have standing to make a 3 challenge.

4 THE COURT: Okay. And let me just ask, I guess my 5 understanding from reading the briefs is the Government agrees
6 that these defendants are aggrieved persons under FISA.

7 Is that true or am I making a leap that you haven't 8 made?

9 MR. GRIESS: Judge, we've provided the notice that 10 we're required to provide --

11 THE COURT: Okay.

12 MR. GRIESS: -- in that regard.

13 THE COURT: So you think these defendants are 14 aggrieved persons as described?

15 MR. GRIESS: As set forth in the notice, that's 16 correct.

17 THE COURT: Thank you.

18 MR. WEINHARDT: That's a useful concession but not one
19 that I could have drawn as to every piece of FISA-derived 20 evidence because, again, they haven't told us what they got 21 through FISA. So I don't know whether they contend, I guess 22 they now do, that Mr. Mo is an aggrieved person as to every 23 piece of FISA-derived evidence or only some of it. You know, 24 that's part of why we're in the dark.

25 The other thing that FISA requires is a demonstration

1 of necessity; that is, that you had to use FISA because you
2 couldn't use some conventional method of evidence collection.

3 The reason we need to know what mechanisms were used 4 for each item of evidence is so we know --

5 (Interruption from telephone.)

6 THE COURT: Hang on a second.

7 MR. WEINHARDT: Robert, is that you? Can you mute
8 your phone? It sounds like there's a medical beep going on in 9 the background.

10 DEFENDANT MO HAILONG: Yeah. Medical beep.

11 MR. WEINHARDT: Okay. If you could mute your phone, 12 that would be swell.

13 DEFENDANT MO HAILONG: I'm muting, but you can still 14 hear something?

15 MR. WEINHARDT: Yes. We can certainly still hear you.

16 DEFENDANT MO HAILONG: Mute my phone? I'll cover the 17 speaker to see if it works.

18 MR. WEINHARDT: Okay.

19 We can still hear it.

20 DEFENDANT MO HAILONG: Still hear it?

21 MR. WEINHARDT: Yeah.

22 DEFENDANT MO HAILONG: Okay. It's too loud? Let's 23 see if it's too loud. Sorry about that.

24 THE COURT: Okay. And, again, Mr. Weinhardt can speak 25 pretty loudly anyway.

1 MR. WEINHARDT: Right.

2 THE COURT: So just keep going.

3 MR. WEINHARDT: I'm willing to soldier on, Your Honor.

4 THE COURT: Okay.

5 MR. WEINHARDT: So because different mechanisms have 6 different legal frameworks, we need to know what those are. The 7 Government's response to this was, frankly, astonishing, where 8 they say on the second page of their brief, "Neither the U.S.
9 Attorney's Office nor the FBI personnel involved with this case
10 are aware of any such evidence," that is, non-FISA collection 11 mechanisms. "Should the U.S. Attorney's Office or the FBI 12 personnel involved with this case become aware of such evidence, 13 the Government will comply with its discovery obligations 14 regarding such evidence."

15 That's not the standard. Neither prong of that is 16 right. It's not right to say that things are only discoverable
17 if the prosecutor or the FBI know about them. They're required 18 to know about everything that is in their files, not just the 19 things that they have subjective actual knowledge about in their 20 files.

21 And it also is not right that they get to draw a brick 22 wall between Des Moines and Washington, D.C. and say, "Well, we 23 only need to tell you about the things that we know about here 24 in Des Moines. If they know about it in Washington, D.C., we 25 can ignore that." The rules of discovery, particularly

1 constitutionally driven ones like Brady, cross those brick
2 walls, and we described in our brief how Congress tried to tear 3 down those barriers through recent legislation.

4           So they can't hide behind the fact that, "Well, other 5 people were doing this part of the investigation." And, indeed, 6 we'll say the suggestion that we get from especially reading the 7 search warrant applications is that there were like two parallel 8 investigations going on here; there's a national security-driven 9 investigation that uses FISA and who knows what else, and then 10 there is the conventional investigation that is more locally
11 administered that uses conventional data collection methods.
12 And we're not sure how much the two sides are talking to each 13 other, but we're entitled to know about both of them.

14           We're certainly entitled to know about both of them in 15 order to frame motions to suppress, but we're also entitled to 16 know about them for all other purposes. So there are 296 cell
17 phone conversations that have been disclosed to us. Somebody 18 knows what is in the 297th one and the 298th one. We are 19 entitled to know what that somebody knows.

20           THE COURT: All right. And for our other defendant, 21 does anybody want to add anything or you're just joining?

22           MR. BIRD: We've joined, Your Honor.

23           THE COURT: Okay. All right. From the Government's 24 perspective, let me just ask one question. I mean, typically, 25 it's pretty straightforward if you have a search warrant, you

1 know, the application and the return. Is that incomplete in 2 this case? We don't have full sets?

3 MR. GRIESS: No, I don't believe it is, Your Honor.
4 My understanding from talking to Mr. Weinhardt today, and we can 5 discuss this in the second half of the discussion, is that there 6 are still some inadequacies there with regard to the disclosure.
7 I'm not sure what he's talking about and can't address it until 8 we discuss it further, but that's not what we're talking about 9 here today.

10 The mistaken premise that we started with here today
11 that Mr. Weinhardt presented was the idea that this was a 12 typical drug case, and it's not. In a typical drug case, we're 13 going to disclose all the Rule 41 search warrants, all that 14 information, and we have done that, by and large, again, with 15 some exceptions, apparently, that we're going to discuss 16 further.

17 But that is not what we have here. That's not how 18 FISA works. Put simply, there is no legal authority whatsoever
19 at all to do what the Court -- or what the defendant is asking 20 the Court to do here in providing some sort of analysis or 21 interpretation of the evidence that's been provided.

22 We have provided the notice that the FISA Act requires 23 us to provide. We have done that. You know, no court has ever, 24 to my knowledge, interpreted Rule 12(b)(4) or the FISA notice 25 requirements to do what the defense is asking them to do. The

1 FISA Act is used every day all across this country, and no court
2 has ever done what the defendant is asking the Court to do in 3 this case.

4 There are specific rules that apply to FISA cases and 5 where there's FISA evidence, and those -- a lot of those things 6 have not yet occurred yet but will occur in the future.

7 THE COURT: And is that going to be the affidavit of 8 the Attorney General?

9 MR. GRIESS: That's all part of the process. Once the 10 motion to suppress has been filed, as the parties agreed in this 11 case, then we can move forward.

12 What they're saying, what the defendant is saying, is, 13 "No, no, no, before we file that motion to suppress, we want 14 more evidence," and there is no legal authority which would 15 require the Government to do so. We have made those disclosures 16 to the defense, and so those are the courts -- the rules that 17 we're required to abide by.

18 There are circumstances where Congress has said that 19 there needs to be more notice, as we set forth in our brief, but 20 none of those circumstances apply here. We have provided the 21 notice we're required to provide and the information we're 22 required to provide. They're asking for additional that we're 23 just not required to provide, and so, Your Honor, the thing that 24 needs to happen --

25 THE COURT: But are you prohibited from providing it?

1 MR. GRIESS: That's correct.

2 THE COURT: So you think not only does FISA not compel 3 you to, it actually prohibits you from disclosing, basically, 4 the information that the Court's going to get when it does its 5 in camera review after the Attorney General's affidavit is 6 filed?

7 MR. GRIESS: That's what I'm referring to, Your Honor, 8 is the process that's going to take place in camera.

9 And just a couple of other things, Your Honor, that I
10 wanted to address. We're aware of our discovery and notice 11 obligations, and we will and always have and will continue to 12 comply with them. The Government did not in any way, shape or 13 form intend to suggest that we were walled off from different 14 aspects of the Government as the defense suggests in his brief
15 and again here today. That's not what we're saying.

16 THE COURT: Okay. I mean, that's how I read your 17 brief too so --

18 MR. GRIESS: Well, I understand that, but that's not 19 what we meant.

20 THE COURT: All right.

21 MR. GRIESS: Plain and simple, we did not intend to 22 indicate that we were walling ourselves off from anyone in the 23 case. We're aware of our discovery and notice obligations, 24 we're going to continue to abide by them and meet them. This, 25 the request being asked by the defense today, is outside of

1 that. We ask the Court to deny the motion.

2 MR. BIRD: Your Honor, if I may.

3 THE COURT: Sure.

4 MR. BIRD: I'm Terry Bird on behalf of Mo Yun. And I 5 apologize.

6 THE COURT: Right.

7 MR. BIRD: We are submitting it on Mr. Weinhardt's 8 argument, but I did want to take this opportunity, since it's my 9 first opportunity to be in front of Your Honor, to at least 10 explain my client's position as it relates to this.

11 The superseding indictment names my client in six 12 overt acts, all of which are alleged to have taken place in 2007 13 and 2008. Because of the nature of the conspiracy charge in 14 this case, the FISA arguments that Mr. Weinhardt has made very 15 much affect my client, notwithstanding the fact that the 16 superseding indictment acknowledges that we were no longer -- my 17 client was no longer employed at least as late as March of 2009,
18 and I think the facts will show that it was actually earlier 19 than that.

20 So notwithstanding the fact that we haven't joined -- 21 done anything other than join, these rulings very much affect my 22 client because she is being held responsible for things that 23 happened in 2011, 2012, which were the subject of these FISA 24 searches.

25 I just wanted to explain that to the Court as to what

1 our position is today. Thank you.

2 THE COURT: All right.

3 MR. WEINHARDT: If I may speak for just a moment.

4 THE COURT: Mr. Weinhardt, yes.

5 MR. WEINHARDT: I wrote this down as a quote.

6 Mr. Griess said, "Those are the rules that we are required to 7 abide by," and then the Court said to Mr. Griess, "Do you mean 8 you're prohibited from disclosing what the defense wants," and 9 he says, "Yes."

10 He has to be reading from some internal set of DOJ
11 rules that I've never seen. The Government cites no authority 12 whatsoever for the propositions that he is saying in his brief.
13 There is no -- he says that there is no case that says that we 14 can get exactly what we have been asking for. He, of course, 15 cites no case that says that we can't get it, and none of the 16 cases that he cites regarding Rule 12 come within a country mile 17 of saying that we can't get this. In fact, you know, they all 18 in one way or another acknowledge that we can get what we're 19 asking for.

20 The most important thing I think, Your Honor, is the 21 text of 1806(c) itself. The plain reading of that means that we 22 are entitled to find out what the evidence is that is subject to 23 the FISA notice. There is no case, there is no rule, there is 24 no statute that has been offered to the Court that says a 25 one-sentence FISA notice that could talk about a lot of evidence

1 or a little is okay. The statute says what it says, and that, I
2 think, is what absolutely carries the day.

3 When we're told about the rules and we're told about 4 the procedures, and so forth, those are not procedures that have 5 been proffered to this Court nor that I'm able to look up on my 6 computer.

7 THE COURT: All right. Well, I mean, it seems to me 8 that some of the cases talk about the in camera inspection, in 9 essence, resolving some of the issues that Defendant might not 10 be able to more finely articulate, but once this AG's affidavit 11 is filed, it triggers the in camera ex parte inspection.

12 And so I guess I'm not comfortable just letting that 13 drift, and so what's the Government's thought on a deadline to 14 have that happen?

15 MR. GRIESS: Your Honor, that process is triggered and 16 is dealt with in the -- we've discussed it at length. I believe 17 it's dealt with in the pretrial deadlines. As soon as the 18 defendant files its motion to suppress, that triggers a 90-day
19 window in which that process takes place. We're waiting right 20 now for the defendant to file that motion to suppress.

21 THE COURT: And so, again, you think all the defendant
22 has to do is say, "I move to suppress this because I think it
23 should be suppressed"? I mean, "I don't really have a 24 legal" --

25 MR. GRIESS: Yes.

1 THE COURT: -- "or factual basis, I just think it
2 should be suppressed because it's evidence?"

3 MR. GRIESS: Yes.

4 THE COURT: And you think that's --

5 MR. GRIESS: That's the way it's done in every case, 6 Your Honor, across the country.

7 THE COURT: All right. Well, this is my first one, so 8 I have no standards.

9 MR. WEINHARDT: I don't know how DOJ litigates these 10 things in other places. I know that if there were a rule or a 11 doctrine that said that we can't know what we're suppressing or 12 seeking to suppress when we file the motion, they would have 13 something to cite to the Court that says that. This is really 14 asking the Court to restrict us from knowing what evidence we're 15 trying to suppress on the Government's say-so.

16 And also, to be clear, there is this issue of in 17 camera inspection that is triggered when we file our motion, and 18 Mr. Griess is right that we have to file our motion in order to 19 trigger that. But we're not there yet. That's why much of 20 their brief is premature and anticipatory. Before we even get 21 there, we have to know what we're seeking to suppress. That's 22 the only question before the Court today.

23 THE COURT: Well, and the Government says, "No, you
24 don't need to know that. All you have to say is, 'I've heard 25 that you have some FISA information, and I'd like you to

1 suppress it.'" "

2 MR. WEINHARDT: But how --

3 THE COURT: I know.

4 MR. WEINHARDT: I don't know, first of all, how I
5 would be able to intelligently frame an argument, for example, 6 about the necessity question if I don't know what evidence we're 7 talking about. Some evidence can be procured some ways, some 8 evidence can be procured other ways. So that's number one.

9 And secondly, how does the Government explain the way
10 the statute is written? The statute language seems to be more 11 than plain.

12 THE COURT: All right. Well, I'll take this under 13 advisement based on the briefing that you've given me and my 14 interpretation of the case law that I've reviewed and what 15 you've cited.

16 Tell me where you think you are in the world of 17 scheduling.

18 MR. WEINHARDT: Your Honor, let me talk a little bit 19 generally about where we are with discovery because, as the 20 Court knows, discovery has been extremely voluminous and 21 unprecedentedly, in my experience in this district, slow.

22 So we have been in correspondence and discussions and 23 meetings and phone calls with the Government at a pretty regular 24 pace since August. When the case was exactly a year old, we 25 filed our motion to compel, on December 15th.

1 I met with Mr. Griess and Mr. Krickbaum on January 2 6th, and we worked out an agreement that they would not need to 3 resist that motion until the Government made what was 4 represented to be the final, final production on January 31st.
5 It turned out to be on the 30th because the 31st was a Saturday.
6 And then the Court directed us to report to the Court by way of 7 status of whether or not there are still issues, other than the 8 one that we just argued, that need to be litigated yet.

9 It's taken us a long time in order to analyze that 10 question because the January 30th production was very extensive, 11 and so Mr. Beck and I have been working with some other folks in 12 order to get our arms around it.

13 And to give the Court some idea, one of the issues
14 with the production is that it has been, both before January 15 30th and January 30th itself, it has been very piecemeal. So 16 with regard to a particular search warrant, different items -- 17 the application, the warrant, there could be inventory and so 18 forth -- will be in different places in different folders. None 19 of it is Bates numbered.

20 So our best estimate is that in order to just put 21 attachments together and group things the way they belonged, and 22 so forth, took our team between 15 and 20 person-days from the 23 production on January 30th up until now.

24 But we are now -- in the last two days, Mr. Beck and I 25 have spent a fair amount of time figuring out where we are.

1 Where we believe we are is we don't think that the final, final
2 January 30th production is, in fact, complete in a couple 3 different respects.

4 First, there are things that we think the Government
5 would agree that we're entitled to but we don't have even 14
6 months later. So I've talked about the incompleteness with 7 regards to the search warrant applications. There has been, as 8 we understand it, genetic testing that has been done in this 9 case in an attempt to say this seed seized from a defendant
10 connects back to this company or this gene pool, or whatever, 11 and that has been around for a long time. It's referenced in 12 warrant applications. None of that has ever been produced.

13 There are -- just as a matter of mechanics, there are 14 gaps in reports, so a 302 will reference an attachment but the 15 attachment isn't produced. And, as the Court will recall, we 16 produced as Exhibit A to our motion to compel a chart or 17 spreadsheet of what we thought all those gaps were. Some of 18 them have been filled, some of them have not. The January 30th 19 production produced a bunch of new gaps, and so our current gap 20 chart is more than 100 items long.

21 We haven't had any evidence yet produced to us that 22 the Government acquired from the seed companies, and there's a 23 holdup about that in that we need to work out a protective order
24 with the Government for that. We still don't have a draft of a 25 protective order in order to negotiate or to put that together.

1           So those are the things we think the Government agrees
2 about but we don't have them. Then there are things where I
3 think the defense and the Government simply may not agree.

4           So, for example, it's going to be our position that 5 any translations of the defendant's own statements from Mandarin 6 to English in the Government's hands, whether drafts or 7 preliminary, whatever they are, any translation of our client's
8 statements in the Government's hands are produceable under Rule
9 16. I think we may take that position on co-conspirator
10 statements as well, but certainly for our client's own 11 statements, and I don't know that the Government agrees with 12 that.

13           We have asked the Government to declare once and for 14 all that we have all of the statements that our client has ever 15 made, whether e-mail, documentary, oral or whatever, and we have 16 not received that declaration, and I'm not sure whether the 17 Government is prepared to do any of that.

18           There are other areas where we think there are just 19 going to be some plain legal disputes between the parties, so I
20 think that we are headed for further proceedings on this motion 21 to compel. But Mr. Beck and I reached out to Mr. Krickbaum and 22 Mr. Griess today in order to try to give the Court an orderly 23 proposal for how to conduct that.

24           So here's what we would propose, and I think the 25 Government is on board with this, is that we would give the

1 Government our plenary list of everything that we think is in 2 issue; disputed, incomplete, whatever. We're prepared to do
3 that by Monday.

4           The Government would have two weeks thereafter to 5 produce whatever needs to be produced, respond that things 6 aren't going to be produced, but to give its final position and 7 final, final, final production on whatever is outstanding. And 8 then whatever issues remain after we process that response, we 9 would brief to the Court, and then the parties will just have to 10 fight it out.

11           Not knowing how big that production is going to be, 12 certainly January 30th was bigger than we had anticipated, we 13 don't know how long it would take. We would ask for three weeks
14 in order to brief that. If we're able to do it faster, we'll do 15 it faster.

16           I would say I have two provisos about this deadline
17 which I think we've calculated out now to March 16th. The first 18 is it needs to be the entire Government that is responding and 19 not just the local agents and local U.S. Attorney's Office, 20 which now Mr. Griess says that's what we're going to get. But 21 the Court can imagine how that phrase that I read sent a chill 22 down our spine when we read that brief thinking that we were 23 talking to only part of the Government.

24           The other thing is this case is now 14 months old. It 25 will be 15 months old by the time this next deadline that we're

1 proposing hits. We think enough is enough in terms of the time
2 that it's taken to produce these things, and so anything 3 produced after March 16th, and we're not asking the Court to 4 decide, but we would reserve our right to seek sanctions for 5 that production either by way of exclusion at trial or some 6 other sanction. But we think that there needs to be a drop-dead
7 that is serious and enforceable or this is just going to dribble
8 on until our September 14th trial.

9 THE COURT: All right. What's the Government's 10 thoughts in terms of a schedule?

11 MR. GRIESS: We agree with the schedule as put forth
12 as far as the disclosure by Monday and then two weeks to respond 13 to it.

14 THE COURT: All right. I guess what I'm concerned 15 about is the easy stuff that we don't seem to have done, like, 16 you know, a full search warrant application, affidavit, return, 17 that part. You know, I think we have plenty of really hard
18 issues to work on. I don't know why we have to spend any time 19 working on the, you know, "where's the piece of paper" issues.

20 So what's our holdup there or --

21 MR. GRIESS: Well, Your Honor, you are asking me to 22 respond to something I don't know about yet.

23 THE COURT: Okay. Well, I think you've had this 24 chart.

25 MR. GRIESS: No, I don't.

1 THE COURT: Okay.

2 MR. GRIESS: Are you talking about Exhibit A from the 3 previous motion?

4 THE COURT: Right.

5 MR. GRIESS: I have that and we complied with that.
6 We provided that. If there are discrepancies or if there's 7 something they don't think they have, which is what my 8 understanding is, they'll provide that by Monday, and then we'll 9 respond as fast as we possibly can. It is my belief that we've 10 provided it all.

11 THE COURT: Okay. All right. So you don't think that 12 there's any instances where they have, like, the search warrant 13 return but not the warrant?

14 MR. GRIESS: I don't think so, Your Honor.

15 THE COURT: Okay.

16 MR. GRIESS: Because we tried to be very careful about 17 that. But if I'm mistaken, we'll comply with that right away.
18 That's what we want to see the list for, so that we can take 19 care of it.

20 Now, with regard to some of the other issues, you 21 know, like the signed versus the unsigned version, it's our 22 understanding in certain jurisdictions, Illinois is one, that 23 they don't provide signed versions. We get those from the court
24 and we get unsigned copies that are stamped by the judge, and I
25 think that's all we're going to be able to get. But, again, I

1 don't know if that's the specific issue we're talking about.

2           Mr. Weinhardt and I spoke several times over these 3 past few days where I've expressed to him, "Hey, let me know 4 what the problems are, and we'll discuss it." It wasn't my 5 intent to come in and discuss all this in open court, especially 6 when I'm in the dark.

7           THE COURT: Okay. And, again, I'm just trying to 8 anticipate how much time we need to budget to continue to work 9 on some of just the mechanics in order to tee up the legal 10 issue, such as do you get draft copies of statements or 11 translations and things like that, so --

12           MR. GRIESS: Well, I can, you know, respond to the 13 translations. This is something that was part of the original 14 motion to compel. We discussed a resolution. We proposed a 15 resolution. My guess is that they didn't like it because they 16 said we're going to leave that out and we'll litigate that 17 later. So I suspect that that's one we're just going to have to 18 litigate.

19           THE COURT: All right. And, again, I'm just trying to 20 get a handle on scope because I want to budget enough time for 21 me to do my part of it and also to let Judge Rose know, you 22 know, whether the work that we have to finish in -- you know, 23 and we're now six months from trial. It's a lot of work that we 24 need to cover.

25           I guess let me just put this out here: I understand

1 that you've just -- that the Government's just taken the 2 position that the Attorney General's affidavit doesn't get filed
3 until there's a motion to suppress. The defendant's position
4 is, "We can't possibly file a motion to suppress until we have a 5 little bit better understanding of what was produced how," and 6 the Government has said, "No, you're not going to be held to the 7 having to have a factual or legal basis to file your motion to 8 suppress," as you might think in other instances.

9           What prevents Defendant from filing a motion to 10 suppress and saying, "I move to suppress all your FISA 11 information because it must be wrong," and then get the AG's 12 affidavit and then get the in camera ex parte inspection 13 started?

14           Understanding that's not what you want because you 15 want to sort it out yourself and you want to analyze it and 16 compartmentalize your arguments, but that's assuming you're 17 going to get that wish, and if you don't get that wish, the 18 trial court still has to do the ex parte in camera inspection, 19 and so that train could leave the station.

20           MR. WEINHARDT: Your Honor, we're working with all due 21 speed to get the FISA motion on file, and we're not waiting, so 22 the Court is clear, on the outcome of this motion in order to do 23 that. So we do want to get that process started, but there will 24 come a point when there's going to be a hearing on that motion, 25 the Government's going to file a resistance, we're going to file

1 a reply, and so forth. That process needs the information that 2 we're seeking in this motion.

3 So even if we don't need it for the initial motion, I 4 think we're entitled to have it regardless of timing, and 5 certainly we're entitled to have it by the time the motion comes 6 on for hearing.

7 THE COURT: Or at least you want it.

8 All right. Okay. Mr. Bird.

9 MR. BIRD: Thank you, Your Honor.

10 It's our understanding that -- and we just received 11 more discovery in the last couple of days from the Government, 12 but it's our understanding, and I think I heard Mr. Griess say 13 today that he believes that we have received all the discovery 14 that is due us.

15 So I just wanted to make it clear that we understand
16 that all statements of my client, Mo Yun, have been received 17 from the Government. That includes any oral statements or any 18 excerpts or any written statements that the Government has in 19 its possession. Because we have not received any since the 20 original discovery that was provided to us. We keep waiting for 21 others. There have been none. So my understanding is as of 22 today that the Government is representing that it has provided 23 all statements of my client, Mo Yun.

24 THE COURT: Okay. And, Mr. Griess, is that what you 25 think the state of discovery is, that there --

1 MR. GRIESS: Your Honor, I'm not -- I believe so, but 2 I'm not 100 percent sure. The discovery in this case is beyond 3 voluminous, and we've provided everything as quickly as we can.
4 I believe that is correct.

5 THE COURT: All right. So just, again, whatever was 6 produced January 30th, which was the thought that that was going 7 to be the final push on discovery, and recognizing that there 8 may be a few trailing pieces of paper here or there, but in the 9 Government's perspective, you don't have another data dump or 10 push that's in the offing in order to clean up discovery; is 11 that your thought?

12 MR. GRIESS: By and large, Your Honor. There is -- I 13 should make clear there is some testing that's ongoing of the 14 evidence, and the defense is aware of this and we've discussed
15 it. We expect that to be complete by our deadline of disclosure
16 of expert testimony on May 1. And, obviously, we'll disclose 17 that as soon as we get it.

18 THE COURT: Is that this genetic testing?

19 MR. GRIESS: Correct.

20 THE COURT: Okay. But that's really an expert witness 21 department. Defendant's statements or statements that are 22 attributed to them or around them, that kind of material, it 23 seems to me to be a defined set, and I'm asking, has that been 24 produced?

25 MR. GRIESS: Yes.

1 MR. BIRD: Thank you, Your Honor.

2 MR. WEINHARDT: Can we get an answer to the same
3 question for our client?

4 THE COURT: Okay. I mean, again, this is historic 5 information, it's pre-indictment information that I'm talking 6 about in terms of discovery.

7 And so, again, I'll ask the Government, is it your 8 belief that statements from both of the defendants we have here
9 for this case, that their statements have been produced?

10 MR. GRIESS: Your Honor, it's my belief that we have 11 complied with our discovery obligations to the extent that we 12 can at this point.

13 THE COURT: Well, that doesn't tell me anything. I 14 mean --

15 MR. GRIESS: Well --

16 THE COURT: I mean, it tells me that you tried and but 17 there still could be another giant, you know, chunk out there.

18 MR. GRIESS: Your Honor, the context of this case is 19 one of FISA, and so outside of the process that you've talked 20 about, we've discussed here, we believe we've made those 21 disclosures.

22 THE COURT: Okay. And, again, I'm just trying to 23 define the universe of what it is we're talking about. So under 24 your FISA notice requirement, you've said we have certain 25 information that was acquired through this statute and we're

1 going to rely on it, and once Defendant moves to suppress that,
2 you're actually going to produce it for ex parte in camera
3 inspection. Whether Defendant gets a better index of that or a 4 better feel for that, I'll sort that out.

5           However, under just plain old garden variety search 6 warrants or Title III wiretaps, there is a way for defendants to 7 find out do you have that kind of information so that came 8 independently of whatever FISA umbrella you're tucking things
9 under. So have you produced those kinds of defendant
10 statements, whether they're straight-up interviews of defendant
11 or a statement attributed to defendant outside of FISA?

12           MR. GRIESS: Your Honor, we have disclosed everything 13 that we're required to disclose to this point.

14           THE COURT: Okay. We'll just work with that.

15           And I think it's going to take getting your motion to 16 suppress on file, and I think I'll work through your briefs and 17 arguments related to identification of the FISA source material
18 or the FISA techniques and make a determination of whether, you 19 know, Defendants get that more fine version of a table of 20 contents.

21           And, again, I mean, I've got my eye on the calendar, 22 and we're going to try to knit this all together in a pretty 23 short period of time. So you'll make your list available to the 24 Government by March 2nd. By March 16, they'll respond. And I 25 hope you'll at least have a finite set of material that needs to 1 be briefed for the remaining portion of the motion to compel.

2 And if we spill into April on that, the minute I get 3 that issue joined, I'll get you a hearing and I'll get an 4 opinion out as fast as I can so that I'm not the one holding up 5 the show and you can, again, get material in the hands of your 6 trial judge on this so she can start working on it, okay?

7 MR. BIRD: Thank you, Your Honor.

8 MR. WEINHARDT: Thank you, Your Honor.

9 THE COURT: All right.

10 MR. BECK: Your Honor, if I may add?

11 THE COURT: Sure.

12 MR. BECK: Mark Beck, also for Defendant Hailong Mo.

13 With regard to the subpoenas, the Court allowed for 14 early returns on 17(c) subpoenas to Monsanto, Pioneer and 15 AgReliant. We've had what I would characterize as meaningful 16 meet-and-confer sessions with counsel for each of the companies 17 on a number of sessions, a number of occasions.

18 Through this process, we've come up with return dates 19 that are more realistic, frankly, for them, and just for the 20 record, the current return date is, for Monsanto and for 21 AgReliant, now set for March 3rd, the return date for Pioneer is 22 now set for March 4th. Those companies will do what they must 23 by that date in agreement of all parties.

24 THE COURT: All right. And so are you anticipating 25 that there would be some objections or further requests for

1 protective order or --

2 MR. BECK: I think, based upon discussions in the last 3 couple of days, that we have narrowed the disagreement that the 4 parties seem to have with regard to our entitlement to some of 5 those materials, but that at least one of the companies, maybe 6 all, may bring a motion to quash as to some aspect of the 7 current subpoenas and may seek protective order for some 8 aspects. We think that universe is smaller now. We were hoping 9 to avoid burdening the Court at all, but that's not our call,
10 and we'll know for sure in the coming days.

11 THE COURT: Okay. I mean, I appreciate the heads-up 12 because, again, I'm just trying to budget time for you for this 13 case so that we can move that portion along, again, with your 14 motion to compel and information that the Government's holding.

15 Okay.

16 MR. GRIESS: Your Honor, we did have one final issue.
17 We had previously submitted a list of deadlines that the parties 18 agreed upon. Then there was the Court's order that came out on 19 January 15th. There was one discrepancy between the order and 20 the deadlines we agreed upon, and that had to do with the 21 Government's response to the defense's subpoena -- excuse me -- 22 motions which are to be filed on March 27th. The agreed upon 23 deadline was our response, the Government response, by April 24 27th. We'd ask that the Court amend the order to reflect that 25 agreement.

1 THE COURT: What, I put March 27th?

2 MR. GRIESS: Their pretrial motion date is March 27th.
3 You put 14 days for our response. We had previously agreed that 4 our response would be due on April 27th.

5 MR. WEINHARDT: Mr. Griess has correctly stated the 6 agreement of the parties, and I, frankly, missed that the report 7 didn't reflect that.

8 THE COURT: Okay. We'll fix that. That's fine.

9 MR. GRIESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

10 THE COURT: Okay. All right. Anything else we need 11 to do?

12 MR. BECK: And, Your Honor, I should put on the record
13 too my understanding that the Government has agreed that, as 14 part of this effort to avoid truly burdening the Court with a 15 debate over very broad but proper requests for materials that 16 were served upon these companies, the better course would be to 17 proceed in a more narrow fashion as we have to in turn see 18 whether we can get some of the additional materials from the 19 Government when they produce those company materials they 20 have -- I think we're waiting for protective order there -- and 21 that if we can't resolve these issues that way that we go back 22 to the companies and seek what remains, but that in doing this 23 it may be necessary to proceed with an additional 17(c) 24 subpoena.

25 The reason for proceeding in this fashion is, frankly,

1 not to burden those companies to have to go out and produce for 2 us materials that they might already have given the Government 3 in that when we get full discovery we may be able to moot the 4 need to put the companies to that task. So we're not looking to 5 have two bites at any apple but rather to take it in steps.

6 So we've narrowed our requests now to materials that 7 the companies, of course, have that are easily gotten, in our 8 view, and leaving the broader requests for potentially another 9 day with an effort by all parties to try to narrow that.

10 THE COURT: Well, in this protective order that you're 11 trying to work out that sounds like it will cover this, are the 12 companies dealt in or is this something --

13 MR. BECK: Yes. Yes.

14 MR. WEINHARDT: Yes. And I mentioned that we're 15 waiting on a draft of a protective order from the Government
16 regarding the company information in the Government's hands. I
17 should make clear I think Jason's had a draft on his desk for a 18 long time, but there's been an attempt to coordinate with the 19 companies, and we're not sure that everyone between the right
20 hand and the left hand at these companies is talking to each 21 other.

22 And so, you know, I think just getting a whole lot of 23 lawyers to agree to something has been difficult, and, you know, 24 our idea is if we can get it from the Government because the 25 Government's already had it for a while, we'd do it that way

1 rather than trying to burden the companies. We just need to try 2 to get everybody on the same page about a protective order, or 3 maybe we'll just have four separate ones, I don't know, but 4 that's the goal.

5 THE COURT: Right. But I'm just trying to avoid 6 having you and the Government get to some meeting of minds on a 7 protective order and then the company say, "I can't work with 8 that."

9 MR. GRIESS: Your Honor, I'm prepared to go in both 10 directions. We have not been -- the Government has not been 11 involved to any great extent in the subpoena discussion, and so 12 my understanding is we're going to be dealt in a little bit more 13 later this afternoon and going forward, and then we'll try and 14 see where that takes us.

15 But we're prepared to go anywhere we need to go to 16 obtain that protective order. The delay right now has to do 17 with a negotiation between the parties on what's going on on the 18 subpoenas and a desire to coordinate to the greatest extent 19 possible.

20 THE COURT: All right. Well, let's just try to get 21 some deadline so that I know that either that issue is resolved
22 or that issue needs me to come up with a protective order. So
23 can we give ourselves like three weeks to get that all ironed 24 out?

25 MR. BECK: Well, we think we have a deadline that all

1 parties acknowledge with regard to the productions sought in the 2 subpoenas served upon the three companies, and those were the 3 deadlines I mentioned a minute ago.

4 THE COURT: I thought that was they were going to 5 respond, and their response could be, "I'm not going to give you 6 anything."

7 MR. BECK: Well, no. Understood.

8 THE COURT: Okay.

9 MR. BECK: So that's the first deadline.

10 THE COURT: All right.

11 MR. BECK: And we think, frankly, that with regard to 12 aspects of these requests, they're going to turn them over.
13 With regard to other aspects, we believe there may be a motion
14 to quash, so we'll duke that out in front of the Court.

15 With regard to those that require a protective order, 16 we have taken the position that we're open to trying to put that 17 in place, and the only disconnect, I think, has been a function 18 of time in this case, that the protective order here that we're 19 open to negotiating perhaps could be part of the protective 20 order that the Government is discussing with the same companies, 21 or perhaps it shouldn't be, depending on what's most efficient, 22 but the lawyers we're dealing with may very well be new to any 23 of this because upon service of the subpoena they have become 24 involved, to our knowledge. Now, they may be long-time counsel, 25 but it's unclear whether they are dealing with the other aspect,

1 the Government-company relationship, that does date back a 2 while.

3 We are trying to put all of them, all of them,
4 together with the Government, and we're suggesting that when 5 they ask for 302s and things, they ask the Government for those.
6 So I think there's a good faith effort to put the right parties
7 together in the last 2 weeks, 2 1/2 weeks since these subpoenas 8 have been served, and we will get those protective orders in 9 place or bring that to the attention of the Court, but I think 10 we're going to get there.

11 THE COURT: All right. And, again, let's try to get 12 there, like, in my lifetime is my point.

13 MR. BECK: Well, these are -- and, of course, these 14 subpoenas are three weeks old or so, Your Honor.

15 THE COURT: Okay. And that's great. And so I'd 16 say --

17 MR. BECK: We agree.

18 THE COURT: -- figure it out, and then I would hope by 19 the end of March somebody could tell me that you're either stuck 20 or you've got that one resolved.

21 MR. BECK: Absolutely. And I think on the subpoenas
22 we're making faster progress and more progress than I 23 anticipated. But there may be some subjects we'll need the 24 Court's help on, but I don't think there will be delays 25 associated with this process.

1           THE COURT: Okay. All right. Let me try to get this 2 issue on the FISA notice under advisement and get an order out
3 to you. I may file a motion to suppress just to get this AG's
4 affidavit and then at least get this in Judge Rose's hands. So 5 I'd like to get some discovery rolling here so we know what the 6 heck we're doing and who's doing it because we are six months
7 from trial so we need to pick up the pace.

8           Okay. All right. Anything else we need to do that I 9 can help you with?

10           I'll fix that deadline for you, Mr. Griess. I didn't 11 notice that.

12           MR. GRIESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

13           THE COURT: Anything else? No?

14           MR. WEINHARDT: Nothing else for us, Your Honor.

15           MR. SPIES: Thank you, Your Honor.

16           THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.
